Whip it good.

The releases this week are a bit all over the place. From becoming a tank and blowing things up to murders on famous tragic cruise lines, we can only expect the in-between to be equally as outrageous– there’s even a Garfield racing game. Let’s check it out:

Releases

Wii U eShop

- Pandora’s Tower – $19.99 — The third Wii RPG championed by Operation Rainfall, Pandora’s Tower is also one of the darkest. From ripping the hearts from beasts to cursed allies, you can expect the dark ambience to completely envelope you as you scale the game’s 13 towers to find a cure for your friend Elena.
- Wind-up Knight 2 – $7.50 — The sequel to Wind-up Knight comes in a similar form as a runner in which you have weapons to attack obstacles that come your way. With things to unlock and HD graphics to stare at, this could potentially bring a dose of fun to Wii U owners everywhere.

3DS eShop

- Brave Tank Hero – $4.99 — Reading the title, you may think this is about a humanoid tank that saves the world. Wrong; you play as an actual tank and compete for the highest score spanning 50 missions. Become the tank you’ve always wanted to be.
- Best of Arcade Games – Bubble Buster – $9.99 — We’ve all played Bust a Move at one point in our lives. This title unofficially recognizes it as one of the best arcade-style games of a generation and repackages the concept.
- Best of Arcade Games – Air Hockey – $9.99 — Some people like air hockey. Some people love it. Some people like it a little more than people who just like it. Does it make much sense? Not really, but they will be the people who buy this game.

3DS Retail

- Garfield Kart – $29.99
- Paddington: Adventures in London – $29.99
